

and how to use the information to make healthy food choices. The comment period was open until October 9, 2003.

In December 2003, the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Science (IOM/NAS) issued a report entitled "Dietary Reference Intakes: Guiding Principles for Nutrition Labeling and Fortification" (the 2003 report) in which the overarching goal was to have updated nutrition labeling that consumers can use to make informed dietary choices. The IOM/NAS's Dietary Reference Intake (DRI) 2002 report on macronutrients did not establish an estimated average requirement (EAR), an adequate intake (AI), or an acceptable macronutrient distribution range (AMDR) for trans fat because the presence in the diet meets no known nutritional need, hence there are no DRI values that can be readily used as the basis for a trans fat daily value (DV). Therefore, to establish a DV for trans fat, the 2003 report suggested an approach to estimate minimum trans fat intakes within a nutritionally adequate North American diet and use this value to establish a DV for trans fat. The 2003 report also recommended that saturated fat and trans fat amounts be listed on separate lines, but that one numerical value for the percent DV (%DV) be included in the nutrition facts panel for these two nutrients together. In response to requests received in this docket, FDA reopened the comment period on March 1, 2004 (69 FR 9559), to allow interested persons the opportunity to consider the 2003 report and its discussion specific to trans fat labeling in comments submitted on the ANPRM.

Recently, FDA has scheduled a FAC Nutrition Subcommittee meeting for April 27 and 28, 2004 (see the notice of meeting in the Federal Register of March 29, 2004 (69 FR 16275), or <http://www.fda.gov/OHRMS/DOCKETS/>), to discuss, in part, the current scientific evidence for determining a maximal daily intake value of trans fat and how trans fat compares to saturated fat with respect to reducing coronary heart disease risk. The outcome of this meeting may help determine the course of action for trans fat labeling. We believe it is necessary to extend the comment period to allow stakeholders time to consider the new information when commenting in this docket. Using this new information will provide a stronger science base for a subsequent proposal. Therefore, we are requesting comment on whether the available scientific evidence, as will be discussed in the FAC Nutrition Subcommittee meeting, supports listing the %DV for saturated fat and trans fat together or separately on the nutrition facts panel and what the maximal daily intake of trans fat may be. A transcript of the subcommittee meeting is expected to be placed in Docket 2003N-0076 by May 14, 2004.

We are continuing to request comments on whether a DV for trans fat or joint DV for saturated and trans fats would eliminate the necessity for considering a disclosure statement, in conjunction with nutrient content or health claims, concerning levels of saturated fat, trans fat, or cholesterol in a food or in the diet, or a message about the role of such cholesterol-raising lipids in increasing the risk of coronary heart disease. Further, we are requesting comment on whether a DV for trans fat or a joint DV for saturated and trans fats would eliminate the need for a footnote about trans fat, either alone or in combination with saturated fat and cholesterol.

Information and data obtained from comments and from consumer studies may be used to help draft a proposed rule on trans fat to: (1) Establish criteria for certain nutrient content or health claims; (2) require the use of a footnote, or other labeling approach, about one or more cholesterol-raising lipids in the nutrition facts panel; and (3) develop a DV for trans fat either alone or in combination with saturated fat for use with a joint %DV for saturated and trans fat on the nutrition label to assist consumers in maintaining healthy dietary practices.
