Synopsis

1. On September 30, 2020, the Commission adopted Misuse of Internet Protocol (IP) Captioned Telephone Service; Telecommunications Relay Services and Speech-to-Speech Services for Individuals with Hearing and Speech Disabilities, Report and Order, Order on Reconsideration, and Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, published at 85 FR 64971, October 14, 2020, and 86 FR 7681, February 1, 2021. Pursuant to the Report and Order, TRS Fund compensation for the provision of IP CTS is to be reduced from the current level of $1.42 per minute to $1.30 per minute, effective July 1, 2021.

2. The Joint Providers contend that deferring the scheduled compensation reduction would better enable the Commission to consider the impact on compensation rates before adopting changes in applicable service-quality standards, as proposed in the Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking. The Joint Providers point out that the currently scheduled compensation adjustment follows a series of previous adjustments ordered by the Commission over a three-year period, with the goal of bringing TRS Fund compensation into line with reasonable cost, and that these prior adjustments reduced per-minute IP CTS compensation from $1.9467 (in the 2017–18 Fund Year) to the current $1.42 level.

3. The Joint Providers also assert that “significant uncertainty as to future costs and demand” has resulted from the “protracted impact of the [COVID–19] pandemic” and the consequent adjustments made by IP CTS providers “to ensure high quality access for users.” As a result, the Joint Providers argue, “a prudent approach is to halt further rate reductions, determine the appropriate standards that will be adopted for IP CTS, determine the impact of those standards on normalized costs (i.e., not impacted by a worldwide pandemic), and determine a long-term rate methodology that ensures continued functional equivalence, innovation, and consumer choice for IP CTS users.”

4. The Bureau seeks comment on the Joint Providers' request. In particular, because there is insufficient information in the record to evaluate some of the assertions in the request, and because the Commission's analysis of the issues raised should be data driven, the Bureau seeks additional information on the following:

- Current estimates are that $1.30 is substantially higher than the average per-minute IP CTS cost projected for 2021–22. The $1.30 per-minute compensation rate was adopted based on pre-COVID–19 estimates of average per-minute cost. To date, the impact of the COVID–19 pandemic has been to reduce average per-minute IP CTS costs substantially below the $1.30 cost-based rate adopted by the Commission. Based on providers' cost and demand projections submitted in March 2021, the TRS Fund administrator estimates a weighted average cost for IP CTS (including a 10% operating margin) of $1.1169 per minute—approximately 14% lower than the scheduled $1.30 compensation. Have providers revised their projections of 2021–22 costs and demand? If so, the Bureau seeks detailed information about such revised projections and the basis on which they were revised, to enable a determination of the likelihood that average per-minute costs (plus operating margin) for the 2021–22 Fund Year will exceed the $1.30 level. Is there other reliable data supporting a compensation freeze at the $1.42 level?

- The $1.30 per-minute rate that is scheduled to become effective July 1 will expire at the end of the 2021–22 Fund Year. Is freezing the rate at a higher level necessary at this time, or could the Commission effectively address the impact of possible changes in service-quality standards when setting compensation for the subsequent rate period?

- While the Commission has proposed that metric standards be developed for IP CTS caption delay and accuracy, no such standards have been adopted to date. Nonetheless, the Bureau seeks information about any investments in quality and technology improvements currently being considered by providers. To what extent could such investments be expected to cause a net increase in a provider's per-minute service costs during the 2021–22 Fund Year?

- Given the industry's recent innovation, development, and investment in automatic speech recognition, to what extent could such investment in quality and technology improvements result in a decrease in per-minute costs?

- If the Commission were to “freeze” IP CTS compensation at the current $1.42 level, what increase would be needed in the proposed TRS funding requirement and the contribution factor for support of IP CTS? If such action were to be taken after the $1.30 compensation level becomes effective, should the Commission “true up” compensation retroactively to July 1? How should such a true-up be handled?
