SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

The bay checkerspot butterfly (Euphydryas editha bayensis) is a medium-sized butterfly with a wing span of about 5 centimeters (2 inches).

The forewings have black bands along all the veins on the upper wing surface, contrasting sharply with bright red, yellow and white spots. The species occurs in San Francisco Bay area counties, notably the counties of San Mateo and Santa Clara. For a detailed description of this species, see the Recovery Plan for Serpentine Soil Species of the San Francisco Bay Area (FWS 1998) and references within that plan.

Pursuant to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (Act), the bay checkerspot butterfly was listed as a threatened species on September 18, 1987 (52 FR 35366). Residential and commercial development, invasive non-native plants, and air pollution threaten the bay checkerspot butterfly.

On June 30, 1999, the Center for Biological Diversity, filed a complaint against us challenging our critical habitat findings for seven species, including the bay checkerspot. On August 30, 2000, the United States District Court for the Northern District of California (Southwest Center for Biological Diversity v. Bruce Babbitt, et al., CIV 99-3202) ruled on several of the species involved, including the bay checkerspot. The court ordered us to propose critical habitat within 60 days of the ruling and to finalize the designation within 120 days of the proposed designation. A subsequent settlement agreement with the Center for Biological Diversity extended the date for the final rule to April 20, 2001.

On October 16, 2000, we published in the Federal Register (65 FR 61218) a proposed rule to designate critical habitat for the bay checkerspot butterfly. The original comment period closed on December 15, 2000.

We have proposed to designate 15 critical habitat areas totaling approximately 10,600 hectares (ha) (26,180 acres(ac)) in Santa Clara and San Mateo counties of California. The areas range in size from 179 ha (443 ac) to approximately 2,855 ha (7,055 ac).

Critical habitat receives protection from destruction or adverse modification through required consultation under section 7 of the Act (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) with regard to actions carried out, funded, or authorized by a Federal agency. Section 4(b)(2) of the Act requires that the Secretary shall designate or revise critical habitat based upon the best scientific and commercial data available, and may exclude areas from designation after taking into consideration the economic impact of specifying any particular area as critical habitat. Based upon the previously published proposal to designate critical habitat for the bay checkerspot butterfly, and comments received during the previous comment periods, we have prepared a draft economic analysis of the proposed critical habitat designation. The draft economic analysis is available at the Internet and mailing addresses in the Public Comments Solicited section below.
