SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On September 21, 2023, as part of its implementation of Reese’s Law (Pub. L. 117–171, 15 U.S.C. 2056e), the Commission published a Safety Standard for Button Cell or Coin Batteries and Consumer Products Containing Such Batteries, codified at 16 CFR part 1263. 88 FR 65296 (battery package labeling); 88 FR 65274 (consumer products).¹ As proposed in the notice of proposed rulemaking (88 FR 8692 (Feb. 9, 2023)), the final rule for battery package labeling requires that packages of button cell or coin batteries contain on their principal display panel a warning label with text required to meet Reese’s Law, and a “Keep out of Reach” icon at least 8 mm in diameter. However, if space prohibits the full warning with the “Keep out of Reach” icon in accordance with the text formatting requirements, the packaging is alternatively required to use the “Keep out of Reach” icon on the principal display panel and the warning text must be placed on the secondary display panel. In this instance, the icon must be at least 20 mm (0.79 in.) in diameter for visibility. 16 CFR 1263.4(b)(2)).

On November 1, 2023, the Commission received a petition from Elliott Alexander (Petitioner), President of Micropower Battery Company. The Petition requests the Commission to modify the rule for battery package labeling to allow for a smaller “Keep out of Reach” icon when space prohibits the full warning on the principal display panel, suggesting a minimum icon size of 8 mm, and allowing a scaled icon depending on the size of the packaging up to a 20 mm icon. The Petition includes example images of existing battery packaging to demonstrate space limitations. The Petition alleges that existing packaging has been made child-resistant, but if a 20 mm icon is required on the front of the package, then manufacturers will collectively be required to spend millions of dollars on production of larger packages and different package configurations. The Petition also questions why an additional “Keep out of Reach” icon is necessary on the front packaging when batteries 16 mm and larger already include the same icon on each battery, which is visible through the packaging.

The Petition requests an amendment to the final rule to allow “Keep out of Reach” icons on the primary display panel to be between 8 to 20 mm, depending on the packaging, and alternatively to allow the words “Keep Away from Children” on the front of battery packaging. In a December 28, 2023, letter to Commission staff (Follow-Up Letter), the Petitioner further explains why he believes battery packaging cannot be reconfigured to allow space for a 20 mm icon on the principal display panel, and provides a proposed sliding scale for “Keep out of Reach” icon sizes from 7 to 40 mm.

The Petition and the Follow-Up Letter are available at: <http://www.regulations.gov>, under Docket No. CPSC–2024–0004, Supporting and Related Materials. Alternatively, interested parties may obtain a copy of the Petition and the Follow-Up Letter by writing or calling the Office of the Secretary, Consumer Product Safety Commission, 4330 East-West Highway, Bethesda, MD 20814; telephone: 301–504–7479; cpsc-os@cpsc.gov. The Commission seeks comment on all aspects of the Petition and the Follow-Up Letter, including:

- Whether the Petition presents any issues or evidence that could not have been presented to the Commission during the comment period on the notice of proposed rulemaking, prior to adoption of the final rule establishing the requirement for a 20 mm “Keep out of Reach” icon. See Comment Summaries A and B, 88 FR at 65300 (noting comments stating similar concerns to those identified in the Petition); and

- Whether, if a 20 mm “Keep out of Reach” icon in sticker format is used on the outside of battery packaging, including over a packaged battery, to meet the requirements of the current rule, the permanency of such a sticker should be tested in accordance with the permanency test in UL 4200A or another standard, and whether such a sticker could be a cost-effective way to meet the product safety requirement for small packages.

Alberta E. Mills,

Secretary, Consumer Product Safety Commission.

² On January 17, 2024, the Commission voted (3–1) to publish this notice.
