Technical measures include but are not limited to system design that allows authorized system users access only to data for which they are responsible; required use of strong passwords that are frequently changed; and use of encryption for certain data transfers. Physical security measures include but are not limited to the use of data centers which meet government requirements for storage of sensitive data.

RECORD ACCESS PROCEDURES:

An individual request to review a record can be addressed to the supervisor, team leader, or official at the address where the employee worked. If that is unknown, a general request can be addressed to the head of the service or staff office for Central Office employees, or to the regional administrator at the address given in the appendix to this notice. For the identification required, see 41 CFR part 105-64 published in the Federal Register (<https://www.ecfr.gov/current/title-41/subtitle-C/chapter-105/part-105-64>).

CONTESTING RECORD PROCEDURES:

Proposed Project

Reducing Fatigue Among Taxi/Rideshare Drivers—New—National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background and Brief Description

Taxi drivers routinely work long hours and late night or early morning shifts. Shift work and long work hours are linked to many health and safety risks due to disturbances to sleep and circadian rhythms. Fatigue is a significant contributor to transportation-related injuries, most notably among shift workers. Such work schedules and inadequate sleep likely contribute to health issues and injuries among taxi drivers who experience a roadway fatality rate of 3.5 times higher than all civilian workers and had the highest rate of nonfatal work-related motor vehicle injuries treated in emergency departments. The urban and interurban transportation industry ranks the third highest in costs per employee for motor vehicle crashes. Tired drivers endanger others on the road (e.g., other drivers, passengers, bicyclists, pedestrians) in addition to themselves and their passengers. An important approach to reducing fatigue-related risks is to inform employers and taxi drivers about the risks and strategies to reduce their risks.

The purpose of this project is to evaluate a training program to inform taxi drivers and other drivers for hire who transport passengers (“rideshare” services) of the risks linked to shift work and long work hours and to evaluate strategies for taxi drivers to reduce these risks. The proposed study site will be the Flywheel Taxi Company in San Francisco, with approximately 500 drivers, who have agreed to share data collected on the study participants. The recruitment of 180 study participants and data collection onsite will be performed by a NIOSH contractor trained by the NIOSH project personnel. This research study involves two parts: development of a fatigue management eLearning training tool designed for drivers-for-hire (e.g., taxi drivers; ride sourcing drivers); and an evaluation of the use of this tool as an intervention. The training tool will educate drivers about fatigue as a risk factor for motor vehicle crashes, the negative health and safety effects of fatigue, and how to reduce fatigue by improving sleep, health, nutrition, and work schedules. There will be pre- and post-module knowledge tests to evaluate the training. The training will be offered online, free of charge, and will be viewable on multiple platforms (e.g., smartphone, tablet, laptop). All participants will also wear a wristband actigraph used to measure sleep/wake cycles, which will serve as a second intervention. The actigraph data will provide a personalized, objective daily measure of fatigue for each participant. One group of participants will receive feedback (an external prompt) from the actigraph which may be used to assess individual fatigue level and trigger self-reflection on fitness to drive and act accordingly.

A randomized pre-post with control group longitudinal study design will evaluate the training and the driver’s response to feedback from the actigraph. Specifically, there are two intervention groups: (1) training plus actigraph fatigue level feedback (N=60); and (2) training only but no fatigue level feedback from the actigraph (N=60). The control group (N=60) will receive neither training nor feedback on fatigue level from their actigraph. Participants will complete a baseline and follow-up Work and Health survey, sleep and activities diaries, and sleep health knowledge questions during each of five observation periods. The Work and Health survey administered in the first observation period will be more comprehensive and the abbreviated follow up Work and Health surveys administered for the remaining observation periods will serve to capture only responses to questions that can change from one observation period to the next. Only participants randomly selected to take the training will complete a training evaluation survey used to strengthen the training’s effectiveness. As part of their daily sleep and health diaries drivers will be asked to complete three-minute psychomotor vigilance tests (PVTs) five times throughout the day to directly measure
