SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The COVID–19 Emergency Temporary Standard applicable to healthcare contains collection of information requirements that will assist both employers and employees in addressing the risk of occupational exposure to COVID–19 in healthcare. For additional substantive information about this ICR, see the related notice published in the Federal Register on June 21, 2021 (86 FR 32376). OSHA seeks to extend the collections of information in the following provisions:

- 29 CFR 1910.502(q)(2)(ii) and (3) (ii)–(iv) Recordkeeping. Requiring employers with more than 10 employees to establish and maintain COVID–19 logs recording each instance in which an employee is COVID–19 positive, and to make such records available upon request to employees or their representatives (in redacted form where necessary), and OSHA.

- 29 CFR 1910.502(r) Reporting COVID–19 fatalities and hospitalizations to OSHA. Requiring the employer to report each work-related COVID–19 fatality within 8 hours of the employer learning about the fatality and each work-related COVID–19 in-patient hospitalization within 24 hours of the employer learning about the in-patient hospitalization.

This information collection is subject to the PRA. A Federal agency generally cannot conduct or sponsor a collection of information, and the public is generally not required to respond to an information collection, unless the OMB approves it and displays a currently valid OMB Control Number. In addition, notwithstanding any other provisions of law, no person shall generally be subject to penalty for failing to comply with a collection of information that does not display a valid OMB Control Number. See 5 CFR 1320.5(a) and 1320.6.

DOL seeks PRA authorization for this information collection for three (3) years. OMB authorization for an ICR cannot be for more than three (3) years without renewal. The DOL notes that information collection requirements submitted to the OMB for existing ICRs receive a month-to-month extension while they undergo review.
