

manual will always be available, including to subsequent owners or lessees.

g. Printed owner's manuals are available through dealers or online for customers that desire them.

h. MNA is not aware of any crashes, injuries, or customer complaints associated with this condition.

5. MNA submits that all of the safety information required by the referenced FMVSS is readily available to the vehicle operator, consistent with the safety purpose of the standards. Unlike the electronic owners' manuals described in the 2009 legal interpretation to Congressman Goodlatte, which required operators to use off-vehicle devices to access the information, MNA vehicles provide easy, onvehicle access to the required safety information.

6. Because the information is readily available to the operator through on-vehicle technology, MNA believes that the fact that this information is not also provided to operators in paper form is inconsequential to motor vehicle safety.

MNA concluded by expressing the belief that the subject noncompliance is inconsequential as it relates to motor vehicle safety, and that its petition to be exempted from providing notification of the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30118, and a remedy for the noncompliance, as required by 49 U.S.C. 30120, should be granted.

NHTSA notes that the statutory provisions (49 U.S.C. 30118(d) and 30120(h)) that permit manufacturers to file petitions for a determination of inconsequentiality allow NHTSA to exempt manufacturers only from the duties found in sections 30118 and 30120, respectively, to notify owners, purchasers, and dealers of a defect or noncompliance and to remedy the defect or noncompliance. Therefore, any decision on this petition only applies to the subject vehicles that MNA no longer controlled at the time it determined that the noncompliance existed. However, any decision on this petition does not relieve vehicle distributors and dealers of the prohibitions on the sale, offer for sale, or introduction or delivery for introduction into interstate commerce of the noncompliant vehicles under their control after MNA notified them that the subject noncompliance existed.

(Authority: 49 U.S.C. 30118, 30120; delegations of authority at 49 CFR 1.95 and 501.8)

Director, Office of Vehicle Safety Compliance.
