

habitat, specify avoidance areas to minimize impacts.

- Mapping of waterways that are dry at the time of retardant application is not required, but may be included in avoidance areas where there is a potential for downstream indirect effects to occur.

- Avoidance Areas may be adjusted for local conditions. Adjustments related to Endangered Species Act threatened, Endangered, Proposed, and Candidate species will be coordinated with the local offices of the United States Department of Interior Fish and Wildlife Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration National Marine Fisheries Service, hereinafter referred to as the Services.

All forests and grasslands would review and update maps annually, following current national mapping protocols.

Annual Coordination

The Forest Service would coordinate annually with:

- Local services offices;
- Aviation managers and pilots; and
- Cooperators/other agencies.

Coordination would ensure requirements of the provisions of the proposal are met, maintain relationships, and allow resolutions of problems at the lowest level. Guidance on coordination meetings would be provided in an implementation guide.

Reporting and Monitoring Requirements

The Forest Service would maintain a database for reporting intrusions of aerially applied fire retardant into avoidance areas. Intrusion reporting requirements would be described in an implementation guide, including requirements of upward reporting to the Services for an intrusion report into an avoidance area for a Threatened, Endangered, Proposed, or Candidate species or critical habitat. Annually, the Forest Service would provide summary reports of retardant use and intrusions, as well as a listing of intrusions and a summary of observations and actions for each intrusion.

If a retardant drop occurs on a cultural resource, a traditional cultural property, or a sacred site, then the site condition would be assessed by a qualified archaeologist and reported to the State Historic Preservation Officer and, if appropriate, tribal representatives including the Tribal Historic Preservation Officer. If the affected resource is a sacred site, or a traditional cultural property, then tribal notification and consultation would be required as part of the determination of effects. If the effect is found to be adverse, then the agency would consult with the tribe to determine an appropriate course of action to mitigate or resolve the adverse effect.

Procedures when there are Additions to the Qualified Products List

Private companies submit retardants to the Forest Service for qualification. New products or new formulations of existing products must meet the Forest Service specification for long-term retardant (United States Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, Specification 5100–304d Long-term Retardant, Wildland Firefighting, posted January 7, 2020 at: <https://www.fs.fed.us/rm/fire/wfcs/ret.htm>) before they are included on the Qualified Products List. Any retardant that meets the specifications and is added to the Qualified Products List is included in this proposal. In addition, Endangered Species Act requirements will be met as follows:

- Products or new formulations that have the same or similar constituents as evaluated in the biological assessment and biological opinions, and do not exceed the upper limits of those components do not require additional consultation. The Services will be notified of additions to the Qualified Products list.
- Products or new formulations that do not meet the above criteria will result in re-initiation of consultation with the Services. The product is not eligible for the Qualified Products List until all required tests and consultation are completed.

Responsible Official

The responsible official will be Chris French, Deputy Chief, Forest System.

Nature of Decision To Be Made

The decision to be made is whether to continue aerial application of fire retardant, and if so, whether to do so under the proposed action or any potential alternatives.

Authority: 36 CFR 220.5.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Title: National Visitor Use

Monitoring.

OMB Number: 0596–0110.

Expiration Date of Approval: August 31, 2017.

Type of Request: Extension with revision.

Abstract: The Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 requires that Federal agencies establish measurable goals and monitor their success at meeting those goals. Two of the items the Forest Service must measure are: (1) The number of visits that occur on the National Forest System lands for recreation and other purposes, and (2) the views and satisfaction levels of recreational visitors to National Forest System lands about the services, facilities, and settings. The Agency receives requests for this kind of information from a variety of organizations, including Congressional staffs, newspapers, magazines, and recreational trade organizations.

The data from this collection provides vital information for strategic planning efforts, decisions regarding allocation of resources, and revisions of land and resource management plans for national forests. It provides managers with reliable estimates of the number of recreational visitors to a national forest, activities of those visitors (including outdoor physical activities), customer satisfaction, and visitor values. The knowledge gained from this effort helps identify recreational markets as well as the economic contributions visitors' spending has on economic areas around forest lands. For the Forest Service, the collection is designed for a five-year cycle of coverage across all national forests. Conducting the collection less frequently puts information updates out of cycle with forest planning and other data preparation and reporting activities.

At recreation sites or access points, agency personnel or contractors will conduct onsite interviews of visitors as they complete their visit. Interviewers will ask about the purpose and length of the visit, the trip origin, activities, annual visitation rates, trip-related spending patterns, use of recreation facilities, satisfaction with agency services and facilities, and the composition of the visiting party. Primary analysis of the information for the Forest Service and partnering agencies will be performed by Forest Service staff in the Washington Office and by scientists in one or more of the agency's research stations.

Estimate of Annual Burden: 9 minutes (average).

Type of Respondents: Visitors to lands and waters managed by the US Forest Service.

Estimated Annual Number of Respondents: 45,000.

Estimated Annual Number of Responses per Respondent: One.

Estimated Total Annual Burden on Respondents: 6,400 hours.

Comment is invited on: (1) Whether this collection of information is necessary for the stated purposes and the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information will have practical or scientific utility; (2) the accuracy of the agency's estimate of the burden of the collection of information, including the validity of the methodology and assumptions used; (3) ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected; and (4) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on respondents, including the use of automated, electronic, mechanical, or other technological collection techniques or other forms of information technology.

All comments received in response to this notice, including names and addresses when provided, will be a matter of public record. Comments will be summarized and included in the request for Office of Management and Budget approval.

Allen Rowley,

Associate Deputy Chief, National Forest System.
