SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Secretarial Business Development Mission to Peru and Chile December 2–6, 2002

Mission Statement

I. Description of the Mission

Secretary of Commerce Donald Evans will lead a senior-level business development mission to Lima, Peru and Santiago, Chile.

The focus of the mission will be to help U.S. companies explore business opportunities in Peru, the Andean Region and Chile. The delegation will include approximately 15 U.S.-based senior executives of small, medium and large U.S. firms representing, but not limited to the following sectors: energy, services, machinery and equipment, information and communication technologies. Service exports have become an increasingly important part of U.S. trade with Chile and Peru with opportunities in areas that support the development of their increasingly export-oriented economies.

II. Commercial Setting for the Mission

Peru is an economically stable and growing marketplace. With a population of nearly 30 million, an entrepreneurial spirit and a democratic tradition, Peru offers both U.S. exporters and investors an attractive entry to the entire Andean Community. As Peru seeks economic growth within a policy of fiscal prudence, future privatization and development of emerging sectors that take advantage of the Andean Trade Preference Act are creating opportunities in a number of sectors (see above). Transparency in rule-making and customs have been strengthened in the past ten years, and Peru is currently negotiating a bilateral investment treaty with the United States. Currently, the U.S. is Peru's single largest trading partner, accounting for 30% of their imports and 25% of Peru's exports, with two-way trade totaling nearly $4 billion last year.

Peru is an attractive entry to the rest of the Andean region, consisting of Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela. Combined, these countries have a total marketplace of 112 million people with a combined GDP of 290 billion dollars. With Andean Community harmonization continuing in customs rates and policies, as well as a continual lowering of internal community tariffs, Peru is well situated to take advantage of these benefits.

Chile is one of the Latin American region's most dynamic and promising markets. Its strength and attractiveness lie not in its size (population of 15 million people), but in the energy and professionalism of its entrepreneurs, the transparency of its regulation, and the predictability of its decision-makers. Market-led reforms adopted close to 30 years ago and an increasingly diversified economy with strong ties to buyers and suppliers in the Americas, Europe and Asia have given Chile a wide range of options for further growth. Prudent economic policy-making has secured long-term stability. Chile is a particularly promising market for high technology and capital goods. The U.S. is Chile's largest single supplier (almost 23 percent of imports) with two-way trade totaling almost $7 billion last year.

The U.S. and Chile are currently working to conclude a bilateral free trade agreement that will foster economic growth and create higher paying jobs in the United States by reducing and eliminating barriers to trade and investment. The agreement will create improved market opportunities for U.S. goods and services exports, providing important benefits for U.S. workers, farmers, businesses and families. The agreement with Chile will also assist U.S. efforts to create competition among countries for liberalization in the Western Hemisphere, thus furthering our efforts to establish a Free Trade Area of the Americas (FTAA).

The mission will further both U.S. commercial policy objectives and advance specific business interests. It is intended:
